

Enjoy the Ride

Together, we can!

This training for Bus Drivers & monitors begins with an overview of the FISH Philosophy and how to use the four principles of Be There, Make Their Day, Choose Your Attitude, and Play in both your work life and outside of work in your real life to create a fuller life. Then we transition into honing your “superpowers,” including self-awareness, self-reflection, self-discipline, and self-advocacy. When you use these while practicing the FISH Philosophy principles it will help you create an environment or culture that is more positive, make you more productive, and turn your day around as well as others day around whenever it’s necessary. Participants will learn how to use these skills when working with students, peers, and visitors to better manage challenging situations and create a more positive culture on the bus and in the office. This is the key to enjoying work as much as your time off from work! This training would also be beneficial for office staff, teacher aides, cafeteria workers and custodians.

FISH!

Participants will actively learn and practice:

- Four principles of the FISH Philosophy and learn ways to apply them to their work life through interactive activities (learning by doing).
- Important communication skills
- Superpower skills and resources to make practicing these principles easier at work and home.
- How to apply these skills to their daily work to manage behavior and create a more positive culture.
- Have fun learning and growing.

Embedding the elements of this training into your actions everyday at work will help you “love what you do and do what you love!” And, if you apply it to your life outside of work at the same time, you will begin to turn negative situations to positive, navigate challenges easier, and positively impact those around you. You will become a conduit for change and growth for those you encounter both at work and outside of work, truly making every encounter count!
